By VIC HICKY

BELIEVE it or not, the women you see on the facing page are twins.

And it probably won't surprise you to learn that April — she's the dawg on the left — thinks she "got the short end of the stick in the looks department," because May — the babe on the right — is a knockout!

"How would you feel if you were me?" pouts April, who tips the Toledos at 302 and outweighs her svelte sister by a scale-crunching 40 pounds.

"May is slim and trim. She has a great bottom and great boobs. Her hair is great. Her teeth are perfect. Her skin is smooth and creamy. She's smart as a whip, too.

"Me? My hair is like barbed wire. My teeth are falling out because I got trench mouth from kissing that pizza delivery man I paid to take me to my high school prom. And I've so many moles my blind grandmother keeps joking that she can read them like Braille."

April and May, 35, of Whiteville, N.C., are fraternal twins, which means that, unlike identical twins, they developed from two eggs instead of one. That's what accounts for what May calls "our little differences."

"We're like Jenna and Barbara Bush — they're fraternal twins, too!" gushes May, an up-and-coming model who's been described by industry insiders as "the next Kate Moss."

"I know April thinks she was cheated when it comes to being sexy and desirable, and there's no denying that I'm pretty hot.

"But there are lots of things that she can do that I can't do because she's fat and ugly.

"Once when our daddy collapsed with a heart attack in 1999, she picked him up off the

"I can't do things like that because I'm delicate and ladylike. But April is as tough as nails and she has the bulldog looks to match. So it's true that she does have some advantages over a sex pot such as myself."

As much as April wishes she were as pretty as her twin, she doesn't hold May's striking good looks against her.

"When the Good Lord gave out 'pretty' May must have been the first in line," whispers the fat woman as she gazes wistfully off into space.

"But I'm not giving up hope that things will get better. Who knows? Maybe May will have a terrible and disfiguring accident and those people from TV will pick me for an 'extreme makeover' on the same day.

"If that happened the shoe would be on the other foot, that's for sure."

FARMERS HOLD BEAUTY CONTEST FOR GOATS!

DON'T say baaah, humbug - it's true: Farmers in Croatia have staged the world's first beauty contest for goats!

Dozens of farmers from across the country entered their most attractive nanny goats in the bizarre pageant, held in the village of Vincenat.

The coveted crown went to a stunning goat with long eyelashes and shapely legs named Lucy.

"This is a great honor for me and Lucy," her proud owner Ivan Perko from the village of Vincenat said. "I always knew she was the most beautiful goat in the world and now it's been proven."

Organizers say they held the wild and wooly contest to draw attention to the "decline of traditional goat farming" in the region.

NEWEST SPORTS FAD: STRIP BOWLING!

CHEERED ON by her teammates, a female bowler takes careful aim.

THE HOTTEST new trend in sports is — wait for it — strip bowling!

The fad started about a year ago at Longhorn Lanes, on the outskirts of Dublin, Texas. Manager Joane Starkey recalls the moment the idea first occurred to her.

"Well, business had been down for quite a while, and I was trying to come up with an angle that might get folks coming in again. I'd been a regular strip poker player for years. And I just thought — what about strip bowling!? It seemed crazy at first, but I mentioned it to a few friends and some employees here and everybody just loved the idea, so I decided to give it a go."

The first step was establishing the rules of the game. "I wanted to keep it simple," says Starkey. "So I decided each time someone bowled a gutter on his or her team of two or more got the lowest score, would have to remove one article of clothing. Or, for those who want their game to go faster, all players except the highest scorer must remove one article of clothing. The game is played until only one player has clothing on and is therefore the winner. And, of course," Starkey adds, "players who have lost all their clothes are required to keep playing nude until the game has ended."

AS YOU KNOW?

For the past five years, America's most popular national spectator sport has been strip-basketball.

Starkey took out ads in the local alternative and college papers for Strip Bowling Night at Longhorn Lanes. Local radio disc jockeys promoted it during their shows. It was to be held on a Monday night, traditionally the slowest bowling night of the week.

Special day-glo paint was applied to the lanes, which would only show up when the lights were turned off. A disc jockey was hired to play the latest rock, rap and hip-hop tunes. Cult movies were shown on video monitors above the pins. Admission was limited to those 18 and older. Beer and wine specials were offered. There was even complimentary

DYNAMIC DUO TOO BIG TO FIT IN STORE ISLES

DEAR EDITOR, I saw "Bonnie and Wide" — the fat couple that robs banks to support their $1,200-a-day junk food habit (Oct. 25, 2004) — last week.

I've already reported it to the police, but I just wanted to write to you so that you all could get the information in and the monstrous pair came in and bought $800 of merch. In fact, they managed to spend that much money because they were so fat, they couldn't even fit in the store.

I tried to give the officers the security tape, but they said it was no use because the two were too big to fit in the picture. Apparently all you saw was the side view of one of the woman's enormous breasts. Good God, I hope they're caught soon! — Marcie Kass, Spokane, Wash.

OLYMPIC swimsuit for final may have been different if male-dead judges hadn't scanned the finalists.

Dear Editor, As a former Olympic competitor, I know firsthand that the judges aren't (all) blind. I've seen them at the pool and they're not wearing blindfolds. Why, then, did they award the gold medal to Russia's Svetlana Romashina for the synchronized swimming solo and duet competitions? Romashina's performance was clearly inferior to that of Spain's Gemma Mengual, who deserves the gold medal.

But what I didn't know was that they even resorted to rock, paper, scissors and eeny-meenie-miney-moe. I'm not surprised, but I am disappointed. We athletes deserve better. — Anonymous, Portales, N.M.

ball polishing.

The response was overwhelming. "We sold out that night, there was a huge line of people waiting to get in, which snaked three times around the building, and it's been that way every Monday night for the past year," gushes Starkey. "It's become the coolest thing to do in town. Folks from 18 to 80 show up. And now, in addition to the cult movies, I project real-time videos of the nude bowlers on the walls and ceilings for everyone to see. Our bartender and cocktail waitresses are nude. I've even put in a clothing-optional restaurant."

Starkey is in the process of franchising her Longhorn Lanes Strip Bowling Nights all over the world, and has gotten inquiries from as far away as India, the Soviet Union and Vatican City. "I truly believe that everybody has at least one genius idea in their lifetime," states Starkey. "Strip bowling is mine."

DEAR EDITOR, I am so disappointed that I don't get to watch the "Naked News" (Oct. 25, 2004). My wife always wants to watch boring old CNN and FOX News. The anchorwomen are hot – I'll admit that any day – but they're not naked.

Naked! News and books are the perfect combination! I just wish we got it here in the U.S. Or maybe I just don't get it with my cable company.

I think all reporters should strip while they broadcast breaking news. It would make it so much more interesting and fun to watch. – Nick Brownright, Eagle Point, Minn.

SNEAK PREVIEW

NEW TV SITCOM ABOUT BUNGLING TERRORISTS WOWS CRITICS

By MICHAEL CHRON

A HILARIOUS new sitcom is coming to TV — about a zany band of bungling terrorists who constantly goof up as they attempt to kill innocent American civilians!

Ali's Cell is set in [illegible] York City, where an incompetent terrorist leader named Ali and three equally dimwitted underlings hatch one hare-brained scheme after another, which all go awry with rib-tickling results.

"It's a [illegible] comedy reminiscent of the old show Get Smart, except instead of a bumbling secret agent, you have a terrorist leader who's as dumb as a bag of hammers," explains executive producer Mark Ruthenberg.

"One recurring gag involves Ali's No. 3 man Omar, an explosives 'expert' who always blows himself up and winds up standing there covered in soot in front of a landmark like the Statue of Liberty that's totally untouched."

The show is already winning acclaim from those who've previewed the pilot episode.

"Ali's Cell is an irreverent and innovative comedy," raves one TV critic. "And, refreshingly in this era of sexual innuendo, it's also a wholesome show the entire family can enjoy."

In the first episode, Ali and his band of cutthroats arrive at the Manhattan apartment of his American-raised nephew Hamid, an up-and-coming young advertising executive. Hamid is happy to take his uncle and his pals in [illegible], the Axis of [illegible].

"Much of the show's humor comes from Hamid's efforts to keep outsiders from finding out about his uncle — including his Wasp blonde fiancee and Mr White, the all-American landlord who's always barging in unexpectedly," reveals Ruthenberg.

The show also milks the "fish-out-of-water" element for laughs.

"Ali and his men know nothing about America and that's usually what causes their plans to fail," says Ruthenberg.

In one wacky episode already scripted, the gang spends the entire show driving around North Dakota looking for Mount Rushmore — before learning to their dismay that the terrorist target is in South Dakota.

The sitcom is a mid-season [illegible], meaning it will fill in the time slot of a cancelled show.

"Ali's Cell will probably air in January — and it looks like a [illegible] hit," an industry insider predicts.

The Department of Homeland Security has reservations about the show. Gov. Tom Ridge is reportedly concerned that Ali's Cell might make Americans take terrorism less seriously or "perhaps view terrorists sympathetically."

But producers pooh-pooh such talk.

"My parents would never let me watch Hogan's Heroes because it featured 'likable' Nazis like Colonel Klink," Ruthenberg points out.

"We've come a long way since those days. Audiences will take Ali's Cell for what it is: Light-

THREE QUICK & E-Z WAYS TO TELL IF A GAL'S BREASTS ARE REAL — OR FAKES!

By RODDY WEINER

HEY GUYS! You can stop scratching your head and instantly determine whether a buxom lady's boobs are gifts from God or "store bought" fakes, with these tips from a leading expert.

"It's not hard when you know what to look for," says cosmetic surgeon Dr. Constance Cramer.

Here, from the expert's fascinating brochure, Are Those Real?, are the three clues to look for the next time you're in hot pursuit:

1. Do the breasts point in the same direction? "Natural breasts occasionally look a little cracked, but breasts with implants often go every whichway," says Cramer.

"If one nipple's headed south, and the other one's veering to the west, it's an odds-on bet the bosoms are fakes."

2. Do the breasts undulate a train rumbles by on nearby tracks? "Natural breasts are designed to withstand ordinary, day-to-day stress," says Cramer.

"But the least little thing can set implant-boobs in motion."

3. Are the breasts "sitting pretty"? "Natural breasts are spaced one to two fingers apart, providing a pleasing cleavage," says Cramer.

"But implants have a tendency to drift, leaving a wide

New cremation gimmick lets you keep dead spouse in your wallet

By NICK JEFFREYS

A NEW craze is spreading like wildfire throughout retirement communities — cremate your spouse and stick him or her in your wallet!

"Thanks to the Afterlife Adventure Packet I can carry my Millie around wherever I go," says 87-year-old Harvey Brimeister of Sarasota, Fla. "We were married for 65 wonderful years, and I'm used to having my darlin' by my side.

"I take her to the doctor's office, the golf course, on the senior's van to the supermarket and once I even snuck her into the steam room at the lodge. I know she got a real kick out of seeing my buddy Gerald naked!"

The AAP is the brainstorm of Andrew Block, director of Block Funeral Home in Sarasota.

"The idea came to me after I'd watched so many people bury their loved ones and return again and again to the grave," says the compassionate businessman. "They obviously want to be with the departed, so I simply made it easier for them."

The Afterlife Adventure Packet is a handy, see-through zsh pouch that fits snugly into most billfolds, wallets, evening bags or change purses.

"It's a dream come true," says Brimeister. "It's much

NEW GAY FAD

GEISHA MEN

TAKE SAN FRAN

by [redacted] STEELE

IT'S THE HOTTEST gay fad since guys started dressing like Cher — grown men tippy-toeing around in black wigs, rice powder, lipstick and kimonos as Japanese "geisha bois!"

"We are not amused," Nimoi Takeo Nakamura, founder and president of the Japanese Cultural Preservation Society in San Francisco, Calif.

"Geishas are beautiful and subservient women, thoroughly female, and it is their sacred duty to serve men from their subordinate position as members of the weaker, inferior sex.

"This guy 'Hef' turns the whole concept on its ear. It's outrageous. It's lunacy. And to make matters worse, a lot of these men who pretend to be geisha are either fat and ugly or muscle-bound bodybuilders, nothing like the delicate flowers who are the true representatives of Japanese culture.

"I saw one geisha boi with biceps like Arnold Schwarzenegger's. I saw another with his kimono pulled down over one shoulder to expose the brown hair that's growing all over his back.

"I almost threw up. It's sick."

Gays strongly disagree, calling the "gay slur" movement, as it is known in Frisco, a natural extension of their lifestyle.

Herman "Big Madge" Munson will vouch for that.

At 62, he's a self-proclaimed "politically incorrect old queen" who loves pretending to be what he calls "a little Jap flower in the sweet bloom of youth."

"It feels good, do it," he titters, thrusting fat, liver-spotted hands up his flabby thighs before bringing them to rest on a keg-sized beer belly that, he admits, "makes it hard to find one of these here kimono thingies that fits.

"I'm having to buy everything from the tall and big girl's shop and I'm still popping out all over the place.

"Lucky here — if I lift my leg up like this you can see everything, and here I am without my panties. Oh dear!"

Activist Tully Marcus says the fuss about gay men dressing like a geisha is "a tempest in a pee pot."

"It's not like we're going into the schools trying to persuade little boys to dress up like geishas," he says. "We're talking about responsible and rational adults expressing themselves for their own enjoyment and just for fun.

"We're not denigrating Japanese culture, either — we're celebrating it.

"Look, I've seen geisha, real geisha, and there are a lot of gay men who look better than they do," he concludes, "especially with their kimonos off."

POPE GIVES OSAMA THE FINGER!

By MARK MILLER

POPE John Paul II has given vent to his passionate hatred for Al Qaeda terrorist kingpin Osama Bin Laden — by giving him the finger!

The 84-year-old pontiff had to stop for breath every few words as he spoke to a few hundred pilgrims and tourists in a recent appearance at his summer palace in the hill town of Castel Gandolfo. John Paul has Parkinson's disease, making it difficult for him to walk and to enunciate.

Still, it was clear that the Pope was outraged by the actions of terrorists worldwide, suicide bombers, hijackings, kidnappings, and other violent acts for which Bin Laden's organization has either claimed credit or to which they've been linked.

Asked by one of the pilgrims for his feelings about Al Qaeda, the Pope responded, "Quelli lo schifo uma più miserabile della terra. Inadatta per bastare il come di una palce. Future bruciano nell'inferno per sempre." This translates, "They are the most miserable scum of the earth, unfit to kiss the ass of a flea. May they burn in hell forever."

An audible gasp was heard throughout those assembled. And then, one of the tourists asked if the Pope had a message he'd like to send Osama Bin Laden. The Pope's face got very red, he appeared to be attempting to contain his anger when he suddenly blurted out, "Sì, ho un messaggio per che Bin Laden di cane maledetto, e qui è!" Translation: "Yes, I do have a message for that cursed dog Bin Laden, and here it is!" At that point, the Pope defiantly gave Bin Laden the finger, after which the sputtering pontiff added, "E se il mio messaggio non era abbastanza chiaro, forse questo toglierà tutto il dubbio," which translates, "And if my message was not clear enough, perhaps this one will remove all doubt."

Here, the Pope gave the "double-finger," one with each hand at the same time.

The incident is just the latest in a series of public outbursts the Pope has made, attributed by many to his declining health and the world's precarious situation. During a pilgrimage to Lourdes in mid-August, the pontiff belched out curses against all terrorists while doing armpit farts.

And at one of his weekly Wednesday audiences at the beginning of September, he suddenly lifted his robes and mooned Saddam, inviting him to "Baciarlo dove il sole non brilla," or "Kiss it where the sun doesn't shine."

NORTH KOREAN SONIC-BOOM IS JUST KIM JONG IL'S INTESTINAL GAS!

By MARK MILLER

A PROMINENT Korean scientist has solved the mystery of North Korea's daily sonic booms – it turns out the shockingly loud blasts are the direct result of North Korean leader Kim Jong Il's intestinal gas problems.

"Our Atmospheric DNA Detector made a direct match to that of Kim Jong Il," states prominent science professor Hwang Woo Pak, of Kumoh National Institute of Technology.

"Our dear leader is quite fond of kimchi – Korean cabbage – and it's clearly making him intensely flatulent." As a result, whenever the Korean leader speaks in public, he is enclosed in a transparent Plexiglas barrier, which is not only bullet-proof, but also soundproof and smellproof. "If any of the smell were to escape, it could easily wipe out every life-form within a two mile radius," observes Pak.

According to an insider, Kim Jong uses the earth-rattling sound and deadly smell to torture his enemies and get political prisoners to reveal secrets and rat on their friends.

"He also gets high on his own foul aroma," reveals the insider.

Nerds seducing hot babes with hypnosis

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

IN WHAT law-enforcement officials call a disturbing new trend, love-starved nerds coast to coast are using hypnosis to lure gorgeous women into sex slaves!

"Computer geeks are downloading hypnosis techniques from the Internet and sharing them with fellow nerds via e-mail," warns an FBI source.

"This fad is spreading like wildfire. So far this year, 25,000 women in the U.S. have been victimized by nerds — and that's a conservative estimate."

The unwitting victims range from busty cheerleaders and hot young teachers to sexy next-door neighbors.

"These women have no clue they've been put into a trance and seduced by a 'harmless' [redacted]" notes the lawman. "Many [redacted] win with someone so far 'out of their league.'"

Most of the seductions follow a similar pattern.

"Typically, a nerd will concoct an innocent excuse to be alone with the intended victim," the G-man explains. "For example, he'll offer to tutor a pretty classmate in math at her home.

"Once they're alone, he'll produce a computer disk and invite her to look at a 'neat' image he's created. As the victim gazes into the mesmerizing pattern on her PC monitor, she falls into a hypnotic trance.

"The nerd then feeds her the suggestion that he's sexually irresistible.

"After they 'knock boots,' she's generally ordered to forget everything."

Junior H., a 31-year-old Chicago high-school teacher, labored a scrawny, bespectacled junior named Ernest for six months before learning, to her horror, that they made whoopie during the sessions.

Restaurant serves other eaterie's leftovers

By Matt Stench

SAN FRANCISCO has long been noted for its many great restaurants. And now a new restaurant has found out a way to serve these great meals at a fraction of the cost: it serves leftovers from the city's top eateries.

The restaurant, Remains, is the brainchild of Oscar Pinnole, a former chef.

"We serve food left over on the plates of affluent diners who wouldn't be caught dead taking food home in a doggy bag," Pinnole says. "Italian, Chinese, French, Thai – it doesn't make a difference. If somebody leaves it, we'll serve it."

Pinnole says he got the idea from his days as a chef.

"Each night I'd see tons of my beautiful creations thrown out in the garbage, because diners wouldn't finish their meals. It broke my heart.

"So one day I thought, why not serve the meals to people who can't normally afford to eat here? They won't care that it's left over."

Pinnole contacted the fancy restaurants, who were all too happy to resell the leftovers.

Diners seem to be thrilled at the concept too.

"What do they say? 'One man's leftovers are another man's banquet,' " says Dimple Lambert, a frequent Remains diner.

First gay street gang KICKS BUTT!

By Matt Stench

IOWA is now home to the first ever gay street gang, and locals say they should be taken very seriously.

The gang's leader "Lethal Injection" explains how The Back Door Kings were formed. "I used to work at a gay bar in a really bad part of town, and my homies would get hassled by a gang called the 35th Street Terminators every time they came in to see me. After they pumped my best friend one day, I decided we should fight back. Of course, we waited until Queer Eye for the Straight Guy was over before actually forming the gang, but you get my drift."

After the turf wars began, the Terminators realized they were simply outmatched. "They were frickin' scary," says Crazy Dog, leader of the Terminators. "They would wear these really tight hot pants to gang fights. Finally, I said screw it, let the fairies take this block. We'll move to the next one. So, we're now the 36th Street Terminators."

SOME CANADIANS have recently been finding some surprising "special deliveries" in their mailboxes — packages full of marijuana!

The parcels have all been arriving "return to sender," even though no one receiving the package [illegible] to actually be the real sender. Canadian police say drug [illegible] are [illegible] innocent people's information to get away with smuggling drugs through [illegible] postal system, but apparently failing miserably at it because they're [illegible] being sent back!

"[illegible] borrow someone else's name and address as the return [illegible]," says [illegible] Tauhu, a manager [illegible] Collingwood Community Policing Centre. "If for any reason it's returned [illegible] where it's returned to. It's returned to the address on the envelope."

Tauhu has already [illegible] her [illegible] Canada Post spokesman [illegible] Caines says [illegible] never heard [illegible], "but it doesn't mean it [illegible] happened."

Several other Canadians have also [illegible] receiving [illegible] parcels, and all of them appear to have been sent [illegible] have three identifying [illegible]:

- Inside is a [illegible] bag of marijuana.
- They were addressed to intended receivers [illegible] United States.
- Whoever was trying [illegible] the marijuana didn't have enough postage affixed for the pot to make the trip.

It seems odd to Caines that [illegible] drug [illegible] [illegible] being [illegible] on stamps, but he worries that this is a sign the druggies are very cheap, meaning they'll probably come back to reclaim their stash [illegible] the fake return addresses they used.

"I would worry if I were these people," he says, "that if it's coming back to that address and the people know it's coming back, that they would go get it."

MORE THAN ONE WAY TO COOK A CHICKEN

A father and son ended up in a gunfight during a family dinner — because they were arguing about the best way to cook chicken!

The man fired .22-caliber handgun shots at his son, who was [illegible] Beasley, ended up with a bullet [illegible] endangerment and the dad was also charged with malicious wounding.

71-YEAR-OLD GETS REVENGE

A cradle-robbing grandmother took revenge on her former young husband when she learned he was living in their old house with his new woman.

Gloria Story, 71, stormed into the home of John Warren, 38, and, in what she called a "moment of madness," cut the straps off nine pairs of his 41-year-old girlfriend's shoes!

"My Boyfriend's SECRET ... for Amazing SEX!"

As a faithful reader of your magazine, I just had to tell your readers about a recent experience I had with my boyfriend.

First, let me just say he is a great guy. But, after dating for six months, it seemed like he was having confidence issues in AND out of bed. It was having a real negative effect on his sexual prowess and let's face it, with any new relationship, it usually doesn't last very long without a real strong sexual connection. My dilemma was that I really liked the guy.

Thankfully, I didn't have to make a difficult decision because everything changed a few days ago. I came home from work and he basically tore my clothes off before I even made it through the door. Right there on the stairs he practically pounced on me. Confident, aggressive, he made all the right moves. I definitely felt sensations I'd never felt before ... in places I'd forgot existed. We made love for what seemed like an eternity. I never knew what some of my friends meant when they said the earth moved from having sex - I do now. "I can honestly say it was the best sex I've ever had in my entire life!"

When I asked him what was going on - what brought about the change - he wouldn't answer me. So I did what any red-blooded American woman would do, I started snooping. It didn't take me long to figure out his secret. In his underwear drawer under the "men's magazines," was a tube of Maxoderm Connection. After reading the fine print and finding the website, I went online to maxodermct.com to discover more about this magic in a tube.

Maxoderm Connection (of which I'm having my boyfriend buy a lifetime supply) is a lotion that is applied topically to either the clitoris or the penis. An all natural mix of herbs and who knows what, [illegible] straight to [illegible] - that's when amazing things start to happen. He achieves harder, stronger erections and my orgasms go through the roof! We aren't into taking pills of any kind (I'm not even aspirin - so I was relieved to find he was using something topical without any systemic side effects. Unless you want to think of great sex as a side effect, because that's definitely what's going on at our place - ALL the time!

So ... please print this letter. Anyone who wants to experience mind-blowing intimacy has to try Maxoderm Connection. They need to tell their boyfriends, husbands or partners about this product. Or just "accidentally" leave a tube lying around for them to "accidentally" find. I really want to thank the woman who developed Maxoderm Connection - only a woman could design something that feels this good.

P.S., Let your readers know I'm pretty sure they can still get a FREE MONTH SUPPLY of Maxoderm Connection with their order by calling 1-888-378-1336 or by visiting their website at www.maxodermct.com. Oh and even better, their product is backed by a 90 day full money back guarantee.

MY AMERICA

BY ED ANGER

READERS FIRE BACK AT ED!

EVERY once in a while our controversial columnist Ed Anger gets a hankerin' to dip into his mailbag and, as he puts it, "see what the baboons are gibbering about now." Some folks staunchly support him, others are outraged or sickened, but no one is ever bored by what he has to say. About the only thing you can do is run for cover when Ed shoots off his mouth — and return fire if you dare.

DEAR ED, Your colleague saying that it's a good thing Congress is overturning the city of Washington's gun laws because politicians can settle their differences with old-fashioned shoot-outs was right on the money!

[redacted] presidential [redacted] was the sleaziest ever, between forged [redacted] "documentaries" [redacted] outright lies about candidate's military records.

Wouldn't the whole thing have been a lot quicker and cleaner if we just let Bush and Kerry square off on Pennsylvania Avenue with a pair of six-guns like in Gunsmoke?

I bet a tough Texan like President Bush would have no trouble filling Kerry full of lead.

– Pete S., Scottsdale, Ariz.

Dear Ed, Your snide comment in that column backing the repeal of D.C.'s gun ban that Ted Kennedy must "jump 10 feet when he hears a firecracker go off, let alone a rifle" showed incredible insensitivity. Aren't you aware that both Senator Kennedy's brothers [redacted] were gunned down by assassins? You owe him an apology.

– Randi K., Lewistown, Mont.

Ed Replies: Sure, I'll apologize to Teddy – the same day that fat, boozing, pinko apologizes for drowning that poor gal at Chappaquiddick.

Dear Ed, How dare you belittle a great journalist like Dan Rather for making one small mistake in an otherwise dazzling career? May I remind you that he works for CBS, the network of Edward R. Murrow – while [redacted] for a piddling, third-[redacted] supermarket [redacted] that isn't fit to paper-train my dog!

I might also add that Dan [redacted] is an extremely good-looking man many of my friends used to fantasize about when he was the "young hunky one" on 60 Minutes. That's one of the reasons he's made it to the top of his field as a TV anchorman while you are so ugly you don't even run your photo with [redacted]

– Betsy Jean P., Goldsboro, N.C.

Ed Replies: Betsy Jean, I ought to take you over the coals for [redacted] the Weekly World News. The finest newspaper in the [redacted] of A. But seeing as you're my sister-in-law, I'll just wish you and your favorite little "boy" a real nice time watching Dan on the evening news tonight. And keep your fingers up, you're bound to get yourself a flesh-and-blood man [redacted] of later.

[redacted] Ed, Once again, you've proven you're a bigoted, redneck simpleton! You recently wrote that [redacted] is another Vietnam and there's nothing wrong with that since [redacted] War [redacted] just [redacted], [redacted] you go on to compare [redacted] to the Civil War – or the War of Northern Aggression as you so stupidly put it – and you have the nerve to call the South the "good guys."

As an African-American college student I find this totally outrageous. The Confederates were not fighting for "freedom" as you maintain, they were fighting to preserve slavery.

Abraham Lincoln and the Union soldiers were the good guys in the Civil War. If you'd gone to college yourself, you would know that.

– Kelvin R., Flint, Mich.

Dear Ed, As an animal lover, I was appalled by your column in which you express delight [redacted] Bush [redacted] the ban on assault rifles to expire.

It's one thing to argue that you need an AK-47 to defend your home. I suppose, given how many enemies a loud-mouthed ignoramus like you has made, an army of attackers might someday storm your home.

But to claim you need one to hunt squirrels is ridiculous. Please promise me you'll cease this inhumane practice.

Ed replies: Don't fret, lady. I'll just stick to hand grenades.

EXTREME OPINION

As controversial political action figure hits the market, Ed says . . .

BAN NEW HILLARY DOLL

READY FOR ACTION Hillary Clinton action figure, by Herobuilders.com, will turn little girls into pushy women's libbers, Ed fears

Iron Lady Maggie Thatcher is a better role model for American girls

I'M MADDER than GI Joe with a weak kung-fu grip at this new Hillary Clinton action figure!

Folks, that [redacted], left-wing women's [redacted] is no role model for young American girls — and the idea of a boy playing with a doll like that makes me want to puke my guts out.

The action figure is put out by some outfit called Herobuilders.com and the way the company bonchos see it, Hillary is just as big an action hero as Wonder Woman or the Invisible Girl.

Hogwash!

To me a hero is someone like Davy Crockett, who died at the Alamo swinging his musket at a horde of blood-thirsty Mexicans after he ran out of bullets.

The most heroic thing Hillary ever did was try to bring Soviet-style socialized medicine to America — plus keep her head in the sand while her hubby Slick Willie was playing "meet the president's staff" with that porker Monica.

Congress oughta slap a ban on these [redacted]illary dolls pronto — before every girl in America turns into a Young Amazon who wants to wear the pants in the family [redacted] every boy grows up [redacted] a cross-dressing sissy.

I'm serious, folks — this toy is the biggest threat our kids have faced since the Slinky, which I [redacted] against tooth and nail too.

My grandnephew Dalton asked for one of these gol-durned Hillary dolls — he put her right up at the top of his letter to Santa.

Lucky thing I was there to straighten the whippersnapper out. "Young fella," I told him, "that there is what we call a sissy toy. You let boys at school catch you with it and they'll whup the tarnation out of you. And when you get home, I'll take you to the woodshed myself.

"It'll be a cold day in Hell when I let any male kin of mine monkey around with a dress-up doll — especially a [redacted] one.

"Now take this gun. We're going to do something fit for a boy — a little duck hunting."

Dalton, who'll be 5 come December, cried his eyes out — but that's fine and dandy, as far as yours truly is concerned. Just so long as he steers clear of that communist devil [redacted].

[redacted]at makes me so pig-hitting mad is that there are so many other women who are great [redacted] models for our children. Why can't the company make a [redacted]l of one of them?

I'd sure like to see an action figure of good ol' Margaret Thatcher. Also if you're going to make First Lady action figures, what's wrong with Laura [redacted]? Why, she'd be the perfect [redacted] for a little girl's tea party. She knows how to smile plenty and keep her trap shut about politics.

But the female action figure I'd most like to see is Martha Stewart, who teaches young ladies how to turn their homes [redacted] for their menfolk. [redacted] they could even stick her in prison stripes.

They [redacted] a Martha [redacted] doll and I'll buy one myself. I'll even prop it up on my desk next to my autographed picture of the Gipper for all the world to see!

Ed Anger

FIRST LADY Laura Bush, unpictured domestic diva Martha Stewart and former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher (above right), are all better role models for kids than Hillary, Ed argues.

TOP CIA INTERROGATOR IS AN S&M DOMINATRIX

By RITA BOLEY

THE CIA'S top interrogator is a whip-wielding, leather-wearing dominatrix who begins every session with a suspect by hissing, "Tell me what I want to know — worm!"

And even highly-trained and disciplined Al Qaeda terrorists "do as they're told" and "sing like canaries" when locked in a room with raven-tressed McKenzie Dalton, who, at age 28 and with 24-26 measurements — is believed by many to be the hottest intelligence operative in U.S. history.

"I really don't like men all that much anyway, whatever. I'm bending them to my will, and even then my enjoyment only lasts a little while," pouts the curvy Washington-based agent who holds advanced degrees in nursing and psychology and has written two books on the manipulation of human behavior with a riding crop.

"As for the success of my interrogation techniques, it's pretty simple. While I've made it clear that our sessions have nothing to do with the insects I'm questioning — that everything is really about me and my pleasure — they seem to come around in a hurry.

"If I have to get rough, I get rough. You'd be surprised how easy it is to bring a spy or a terrorist in line with a leather mask, [illegible] and a riding crop."

While assigned to question right-hand tyrant [illegible] about his capture last December, she studied his psychological profile and, upon learning that he is bisexual and also a masochist, she entered the interrogation room in a [illegible] teddy and "cowgirl chaps" that covered her breasts and legs — and nothing more.

"He was terrified and thrilled at the same time, especially after I put him on a leash and made him walk like a dog," chuckles Dalton, revealing that "once Saddam started begging me to abuse him, I knew he'd tell me anything I wanted to know."

In fact, it was information gleaned from that interview that led the Bush administration to finally admit that previous intelligence about weapons of mass destruction in Iraq was wrong.

Since breaking down Saddam, Dalton has battled U.S. terror prisoners in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and in Iraq. Although she denies it, several Pentagon insiders say soldiers who allegedly tortured prisoners at Abu Ghraib prison in Baghdad "may have been acting on orders from Dalton."

"I don't interrogate [real street rapists and small fries] — I take on the big boys like Saddam, and when we catch him, Osama Bin Laden," she argues, slapping a riding crop in the palm of her hand. "What good does it do you to break down a bunch of cab drivers and rabble-rousers?

"You're giving them a show for nothing."

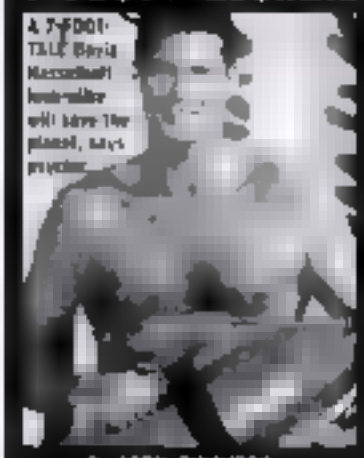
BATTLE OF THE 7-FOOT MESSIAHS



A 7-FOOT-TALL David Hasselhoff look-alike will save the planet, says psychic.

By APRIL SIMMONS

THE MESSIAH is a 7-foot-tall blond David Hasselhoff look-alike – and he's coming to save the planet from another 7-foot mission that amazingly resembles Osama Bin Laden!

At least that's the picture painted by spiritual medium Wendy Lockwood, of Aurora, Colo. She says this hunky messiah appeared to her in a vision.

Based on her drawings, he's a tall, statuesque man whose looks are a beautiful blend between Baywatch star David Hasselhoff and American Idol runner-up Jason Castro. He's supposedly 70 years old, but doesn't look a day over 35.

Lockwood claims her messiah, named "Harjas," is hiding from the public until the time is right, but when he does appear, it will be to save the planet from another messiah, a Bin Laden look-alike called "Maitreya."

To the uninformed spectator, this meeting will only be an incredible fight between David Hasselhoff and Osama Bin Laden, but really, the fate of the earth will rest on these 7-foot giants' shoulders!

The spiritualist claims that when Harjas comes, he will set up shop near Denver, Colo., which will then be known as the "altar of the world," and, even though he will be jaw-droppingly attractive, he won't allow himself to profit from his palchritude.

"He won't be a celebrity," Lockwood explains. "He'll be a humanitarian."

Lockwood says Harjas will be a vegetarian who will not drink alcohol or smoke. He will also be a pacifist who will not allow violence in his presence.

Dear Dotti

Gals won't date me even when I pay them

DEAR DOTTI: I'm lonely and it doesn't seem fair, either. As a super-hunk and ex-football star of 22, I feel I should have my pick of the babes.

I make good money at my dad's factory as his newest vice president. I treat women with respect as long as they know their place and stay in it. And I don't mind spending money on them, either, beginning with flowers and candy and ending with a crisp $20 I offer them if they're game to go to bed with me.

But I live in a small town and I guess the girls who have gone out with me in the past have spread lies about me, and every gal I ask out either hangs up the phone or laughs in my face.

What do I have to do to find a girl to go out with me, Dotti? I need some "attention" before I explode! – Lonely in Belmont, Mich.

Dear Lonely: The way I see it you can do one of two things: Get some serious and prolonged psychiatric counseling or date deaf girls who haven't heard what a flaming jerk you are. Just make sure the ones you pick don't carry badges. Otherwise, they might be tempted to haul you to the pokey for solicitation, pig, when you try to slip them that $20.

CONFIDENTIALS

Dear Evil [illegible] to Washington, D.C.: For a minute there I thought I was reading a letter from Dick Cheney. [illegible] – Ramsey.

Dear Cut Off [illegible], Wis.: The next time you [illegible] like a girlfriend's personal vibrator, [illegible] the Sun Gay out of it.

Dear Stupid, [illegible] Ugly But Sweet in Between [illegible] At least you got your things right.

Stinky mom's wrecking my life with her terrible gas

DEAR DOTTI: My mom has digestive problems that make her toot like a tugboat and it's destroying my life. She's O.K. as long as she lays off the bean dip, which she smears on everything she eats. But once she starts, which is every day, watch out – an H-bomb like you wouldn't believe is headed my way.

In our small apartment, there's no escape. I'm just 13, and I can't move out on my own until I'm 18. Help! – Need Fresh Air in NYC

Dear Needs Fresh Air: Hapless and helpless children have thrived in close proximity to their parents' pooch for thousands of years so I seriously doubt you're in any real danger, unless, of course, you're as sensitive to methane as my dear cousin "Little Sir" Primrose, who choked to death on one of Maw Maw Primrose's silent but deadly "taco boomers" after that run for the border back in 1999. The bottom line? Suck it up, punk. In three more years, you'll be out of there.

DRUGS ARE COMING BETWEEN ME AND MY BEAU

DEAR DOTTI: When I was a little girl I was told to avoid people who take drugs. But I hit a snag here recently when I fell in love with a man who just happens to enjoy his marijuana and all that Oxycontin he gets from his doctor for pain. He's not one of those guys who gets obnoxious when he's hopped up. He's a kind and gentle man whether he's stoned at 9 a.m. or midnight.

Unfortunately, every time he asks me to marry him I have to say "no" because I can't forget what I've been told about people who take drugs. He says his parents told him the same thing but after he started doing drugs he realized they weren't as dangerous as he was led to believe. What should I do? – Old Fashioned Girl in Corpus, Ore.

Dear Old Fashioned Girl: Get your dopey boyfriend to treat you a few tabs of Oxy and a joint or two and you'll forget all about your wacky morals, values, ethics and upbringing. He sure did.

Lilyka claims her alarm was knocked from her husband's bedside on the weekend he was shot dead in a sleeping bag.

E-MAILS and suspect's own screenplay helped lead to her conviction.

ASK LIYSA Northon and she'll say she was a devoted mother, talented writer, great friend — and an abused and beaten wife. Anyone else would tell a tale of an exceptional liar who led her husband to a secluded place to murder him in cold blood.

In Heart Full of Lies, a book written on Liysa's crime, author Ann Rule details how this wife coldheartedly shot her husband on a camping trip — then claimed self-defense as a battered [redacted].

Rule says [redacted] painted a terrifying picture of her husband, told friends he was a [redacted] alcoholic who physically abused her and cried she couldn't divorce him for fear [redacted] get custody of their toddler, Bjorn.

"Liysa spent two years creating a monstrous persona for [redacted], one cunningly designed to make her actions justifiable when she lured him to a lonely place, far from help and shot him in the head."

Liysa's story: Deep in northwestern Oregon, Chris was violently drunk on vodka and tried to drown her, so she grabbed her son and a gun, blew a hole in his head and left him for dead. She says she fled the campsite and drove through the night to safety at a friend's house in Washington. Incredibly, she was still soaking wet when she arrived.

The real story: When police discovered Chris' mangled mess of a corpse wrapped in his sleeping bag, there was no vodka in his system, but there was a potentially lethal dose of the sedative Restoril. Liysa said she shot as she ran, but from the incredible amount of splatter and disfiguration, it was determined he was killed from only 6 feet away. Also, the bullet that bloodied his brains entered from above, so she had to have been standing directly above him when she fired the fatal bullet. Police also question how she was still dripping wet after an entire night of travel.

The evidence was strong, but Liysa had so many friends testify about Chris' violent tendencies that she almost got away with murder — until experts retrieved e-mails she thought she'd deleted for good: A screenplay that suspiciously paralleled the circumstances of Chris' murder and a blunt request for poison to kill him.

Liysa Northon is [redacted] serving 12-and-a-half [redacted] for manslaughter and, to [redacted] day, still insists she was just an abused wife trying to protect [redacted].

SCORNED WIFE CHOPS OFF HUBBY'S HEAD

He tore my heart to pieces — so [redacted] body to pieces, she says

By ERNESTO ALVAREZ

Felicity Ramirez

FELICITY went ballistic when she found her husband, Angel, in bed with his 14-year-old cousin.

Above, Ramirez was caught in the act of . . . and that was his last earthly pleasure.

CRAZED Felicity Ramirez beat her husband to death with a fire poker and then chopped him to pieces with a double-bladed ax after she caught him having noisy sex with an underage relative.

Cops in Belo Horizonte, Brazil, say the 37-year-old woman went ballistic when she found Angel Ramirez, 34, in what official reports politely call "a compromising position" with Marie Guzman, Angel's 14-year-old first cousin, at a clearing behind the couple's house.

Felicity reportedly crept up behind her husband of 12 years with a fire poker and swung it so hard that, according to a coroner's report, "the force of a single blow snapped the victim's neck."

Still fuming, say cops, she dragged her spouse's lifeless body into the narrow dirt road in front of their house.

Once there, she chopped off his hands, arms, legs and head and arranged them neatly for her friends and neighbors to see.

"She went off the deep end and I can't say that I blame her," says Police Detective Gloria Mendes, who made the sex with a child. I wouldn't be real happy about it either."

The gruesome drama reportedly unfolded just two days after Angel Ramirez, a recovering alcoholic, fell off the wagon and loudly berated Felicity for failing to be what he called "a real woman in bed."

"When he finally passed out for several hours," recalls neighbor Antonia Gonzalez, "she finally went back home when she heard what sounded like a young girl moaning in pain."

In her statement to police, Felicity said she "followed the sound" of the girl until she spotted her husband having his house and decided right then and there that I was going to kill Angel," she said.

"And that's exactly what I did. He tore my heart to pieces — so I tore his body to pieces."

HUNTER BRIDE BAGS HUBBY!

Rifle blast severed his spine

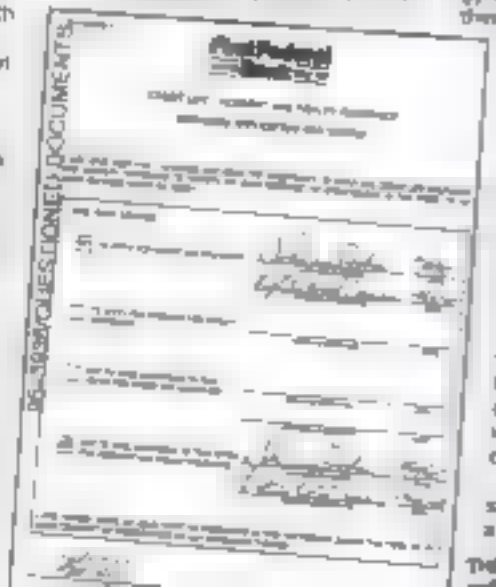
By TAYLOR BRIDGES

THE 1986 "hunting accident" that killed Janice Dobson's husband was no accident at all — it was a bone-chilling, cold-blooded murder.

She and husband Bruce, 48, had only been married for three months when they set off on a hunting trip deep in the Colorado mountains. Bruce — whose insurance policies were worth $485,000 — was only a novice hunter. Janice was an expert marksman.

The couple left camp at 6:45 a.m. on October 15. Janice told Bruce to stay on the hillside while she went around to scare some deer his way. The unsuspecting husband kept watch for the prey, never thinking he would soon become prey himself.

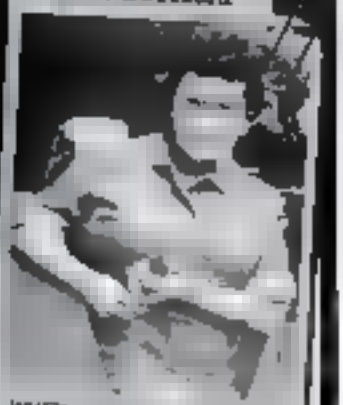
Janice was gone for over two and a half hours, but never did try to scout out any deer. She returned to the spot where she had left her husband around 9:30 to "find" him dead, a crimson stream of blood trickling away from where his twisted body lay.



Janice Dobson

AFTER three months of wedded bliss — Janice put a bullet into her husband's heavily insured head.

Velma Barfield



WHEN making drinks for her men, Velma Barfield like to experiment with different ingredients — like arsenic and rat poison.

'DEATH ROW GRANNY' POISONED HER MEN

VELMA BARFIELD was addicted to prescription drugs. So addicted, in fact, that she would kill for them.

To feed her need, 52-year-old Barfield forged checks on other's accounts and murdered anyone who found out — her live-in boyfriend, her mother, elderly friends and at least one of her two dead husbands.

Her crimes were finally exposed in 1978 when boyfriend, Stuart Taylor, 58, began suffering from chest pains, stomach cramping and nausea. He died less than an hour after being admitted to the hospital.

An autopsy revealed traces of arsenic, and Barfield confessed to mixing rat poison into his beer and tea.

"I only meant to make him sick," she reportedly told her son.

But the jury didn't buy the defense. In fact, it became clear she killed her mother and former husband — his body was exhumed and also tested for arsenic — the same way. Sentenced to death, Barfield gained notoriety as the "Death Row Granny," the Sheriff's office and prosecutor Frank J. Daniels said Bruce had been shot three times at close range with a .308 caliber rifle. The first shot only grazed his clothes, missing his body by a fraction of an inch. The second hit dead-on, ripping through his chest and severing his spine in two. The third struck a fence post before hitting him, but still managed to reach its intended mark.

"The death happened quickly, taking perhaps 15 seconds — but the investigation spanned more than four years," Daniels says.

The bullet slugs found in Bruce's body were too fragmented to determine the caliber or brand at the time, but as the years passed, technology advanced enough to use them as evidence. During Janice's trial, a prosecution expert testified the bullets matched up to a gun she had used.

"Once we had that, everything else held together, including the insurance money," which Daniels says provided a great motive. Less than a month after Bruce's death, Janice had already closed his bank accounts, sold two homes, his car, his horse, cashed in his IRA's and was badgering the life insurance company to pay off his policies.

Janice Dobson is now serving life without parole in a Colorado prison.

DIVORCE, DESPERATION AND DEATH

By TAYLOR BRIDGES

"I realize now that he was right when he said our battles would continue until one of us was dead."

IT WASN'T the first time Betty Broderick had snapped, but it was the first time one of her fits led to double murder.

She slaughtered her ex-husband Dan, and his new wife, Linda, after he was given full custody of their two children. Dan was a top lawyer in California and had met his new spouse when he hired her to be his legal secretary. An affair quickly ensued.

Eventually the two were married and Broderick was unable to control her jealous rage. Armed with a .38-caliber Smith & Wesson, she broke into their home, crept into the bedroom and shot them dead as they lay sleeping.

Linda was the first victim – Broderick shot her once and she shook, then shot her again and the woman sheet for the last time ever. Then she turned to Dan and shot him in the back as he tried to roll away. He quickly asphyxiated on his own blood.

"I went to reason with him," she tried to convince a jury. "If he had given me my boys, I would have been O.K."

They were not convinced. They saw a gruesome murder scene and a desperate woman unable to let-

WHEN Edith Bracz discovered that her husband of 15 years was cheating on her with his secretary, she didn't take it lying down. The scorned woman took revenge by planting a bomb in his briefcase and blowing him to smithereens!

Vladimir Bracz was supposed to be driving from his home in Gorkik,Slovakia, to his office, but instead he took a commuter train that tragic day in November 1961 — and the massive explosion left the train car a mangled wreck.

Miraculously, no one but the cheating hubby was killed. But 88 other people were injured in the bombing and subsequent derailment.

"After investigators found remnants of a timing device in the charred briefcase, it didn't take them long to trace the bomb back to Edith," says crime historian Bennett Wischoff.

"After a police grilling, she broke down crying and confessed."

The bizarre crime drama unfolded when the 36-year-old mother of four learned that her husband was having an affair with his personal secretary, a curvy 24-year-old brunette named Anja Croesh.

"Edith was in the city to shop and happened to stop by her husband's office to bring him his lunch, which he'd forgotten," says Wischoff.

"She was horrified to see Ralph and his secretary making love on his desk. However, the adulterous lovebirds did not see her and she fled in tears."

Edith learned to build a bomb from a male relative who had served as a demolitions expert in World War II.

"In her confession, she revealed that she told him that she was writing a fictional story for a women's magazine," the researcher says.

According to the vengeful wife's plan, the bomb would go off as her husband drove to work. But after encountering a flat tire, he pulled over and took the railroad instead.

An eyewitness seated just a few rows from Vladimir told police that the businessman was peacefully reading the newspaper when the briefcase bomb blew.

Although the prosecution had a strong case, a sympathetic jury felt sorry for cheated-on Edith and she was convicted of manslaughter, not intentional homicide.

She only served six years before being paroled. Today the 81-year-old regrets her choice.

"Divorce was frowned upon in those days," she says. "If it all happened nowadays I would definitely have divorced Vladimir instead of killing him."

Edith Bracz

EDITH and Vladimir Bracz shared a happy 15 years of marriage — until the day she sought him shocking.

POLICE who investigated the explosion aboard a commuter train in Gorlik, Slovakia, found evidence that killed housewife Edith Bracz in the bomb. Her husband, left, was the only fatality. Just weeks earlier she caught her husband with his pretty secretary, Anja Croesh, right.

BLACK WIDOW SLAYS TWO HUSBANDS

By APRIL SUGHERS

RHONDA Bell Martin was sentenced to death for the mass murder of two husbands, five of her own children and her aging mother.

Martin, who worked as a waitress in Birmingham, Ala., was able to hide under a veil of innocence and escape conviction for several years. But as the number of people dying around her rose, police became increasingly suspicious and ordered autopsies performed on the bodies.

Their suspicions were proven correct when traces of arsenic were detected in each and every one of her dead family members' systems. Finally, with the evidence mounting against her, Martin confessed to poisoning the eight victims, and also admitted to trying to poison another man, Ronald Martin, a former stepson who later became her fifth husband. Ronald survived, but the effects of the arsenic caused him to suffer permanent paralysis from the waist down.

Rhonda was given the death penalty for her crimes, and was executed in the electric chair in 1957.

2 LESBIAN LOVERS + 1 MILLIONAIRE HUSBAND = MURDER

'He's going to die soon . . . I'm just going to help him along'

By APRIL SUMMERS

SEVENTY-FIVE-YEAR-OLD Steven Beard's restful sleep was interrupted by a real-life nightmare — he was reeling in pain because he'd just been shot.

"I need an ambulance. Hurry," he managed to tell the 911 operator. "My guts just blew out of my stomach."

Tracey Tarlton, 42, confessed to police that she intended to murder the self-made millionaire because she was in love with his wife, Celeste.

She says Celeste had threatened to commit suicide if she didn't kill him, and even offered up the entire $8 million she would inherit from his estate if Tarlton succeeded. A simple divorce would have only netted $500,000.

"She said he's an old man," Tarlton told a packed courtroom. "She said: 'He's going to die soon, but not soon enough. And I'm just going to help him along whereplan and she wanted me to shoot him in the stomach because she didn't want blood to splatter on the wall because she 'had no plans to redecorate.'

Tracey Tarlton & Celeste Beard.

The two lesbian lovers met at a five-in psychiatric facility, where both were being treated for suicidal tendencies. Sometime during their stay their relationship blossomed into romance, and they began to plan to murder Steven.

The plan finally came to fruition on October 2, the day before Steven and Celeste were to take off on a European vacation she was dreading. Tarlton entered the house during the night and fired off a shotgun into the unsuspecting husband's portly belly.

Everything went as planned. The blood did not explode onto the walls, although it did seep deeply into the easily replaced mattress. Steven wrenched forward out of his sleep, but was not aware enough to see his assailant.

Neither woman, however, planned for Steven to have the strength to pick up the phone. An ambulance arrived within minutes and found him puddled in his own blood — his pajamas soaked, his entrails spilling out and his eyes glassy.

He clung to life in the hospital for three months, but was ultimately unable to recover from his wounds. Celeste was charged with capital murder and sentenced to life for masterminding the plan. Tarlton

LORENA BOBBITT – THE UNKINDEST CUT OF ALL

By ANNA RAMOS

JOHN Wayne Bobbitt lost his temper with his wife, Lorena one too many times – and then he lost his penis.

WHEN LORENA Bobbitt lost her mind, her husband lost his penis.

The later claimed years of spousal abuse finally took their toll, and when husband John Wayne Bobbitt allegedly raped her, she severed his manhood.

Lorena told cops her husband had a violent past – that he beat her and forced her into sexual relations. But the rape on June 23 was the last straw. She claimed she was kitchen while he was sleeping and thrashed around until she found what she was looking for – an 8-inch knife.

"I took it into the bedroom," she said at trial. "I pulled the sheets off, and I cut it."

Her attorney: "You got back up enough, you finally struck."

After the "struck," a hysterical Lorena drove off, but had trouble steering.

"I remember I couldn't make a turn," she says. "Because I – my hands were – were – with something on it and so I – I try to turn, but then I – I see that I have it in my hand."

She heaved the severed organ out the window into a field, and drove to a friend's house, who notified police of where it lay.

Meanwhile, John was at the emergency room having a bloody sheet over his leg. The doctor asked to see the cut on his hand, but John said then his hand wasn't what was cut and pulled off the sheet – there was nothing but a clot of blood where an appendage had once been.

"It looked like it was a forceful, clean cut," says the doctor.

Luckily, the penis was found and delivered to doctors in a Ziploc bag, nestled inside a brown paper lunch bag. Luckily for Bobbitt, his manly organ had not been badly damaged.

"It was a very intact penis," said the surgeon who reattached the member.

"It was not crushed . . . not visibly soiled."

After nine and a half hours of surgery, John was a whole man again. Years later, the re-membered husband was ordered a short-lived

ROLLING IN THE DOUGH: Mary Ellen Samuels covered herself in cold-hard cash

'LETHAL WEAPON' KILLER DID IT FOR THE MONEY

By DORIAN WAGNER

MARY ELLEN Samuels is notorious on death row – not for the brutality of her crimes, but for her incredible greed and flamboyance.

In 1988, after deciding she'd rather kill her husband and inherit $500,000 than divorce him and only get $30,000, Samuels hired her daughter's boyfriend as a hit man to murder the 40-year-old Lethal Weapon cameraman.

On December 8, 1988, the husband was attacked in his home and shot in the head with a 16-gauge shotgun. Bloody bits of brain were splattered all over the walls and floor, but there were no signs of the man having struggled with his assailant.

As the wife, Samuels should have at least pretended to be grief-stricken, but instead she took the $500,000 inheritance and blew it in less than a year – on a Porsche, a condo in Cancun, expensive parties, furs, limo rentals and sleazy clothes from an L.A. shop called Trashy Lingerie.

In fact, the 34-year-old was so seduced by the cash, she even posed nude rolling around in a bed covered with $20,000 worth of $100 bills!

After her shopping spree Samuels used the remaining money to hire two more hit men to kill the original one, just to make sure he wouldn't tell the cops.

Samuels was eventually convicted and now resides on death row in

SEXY SCHOOLMARM TAUGHT LESSON IN MURDER

By DEL RAYNER

WHEN attractive schoolteacher Pamela Smart's husband cheated on her with another woman she knew exactly how to hit back.

The 22-year-old brunette seduced a 15-year-old student and told the lad she'd give him all the sizzling sex he wanted if he'd blow her husband's head off.

Most teenagers would have need the offer, but doe-eyed William Flynn, 15, had it bad.

On May 1, 1990, with the help of three friends, he followed sexy Pamela's instructions to the letter, shooting unsuspecting Greg Smart in the back of the head — execution style - with a .38-caliber revolver.

The cruel and brazen murder touched off one of the most sensational and widely publicized trials in U.S. history.

The petite young woman with the centerfold figure was a cold and calculating murderess who called the love-struck kid who killed for her a "stupid jerk" for getting himself caught.

The "Ice Princess" even shocked veteran cops who recalled how Smart kept referring to her husband of one year as "the body" and "it" — and at the murder scene carelessly stepped on the blood-soaked carpet where Greg Smart fell after Flynn shot him dead.

"Pamela thought she was smart, but she had no street smarts," said Police Capt. Loring Jackson, of the police department in Derry, N.H., where the Smarts lived and Greg was murdered.

"She made many mistakes, right and left."

One of the biggest, it might be argued, was sending a boy to do the "man's job" of cold-blooded murder.

After meeting Flynn in one of her media classes at Winnacunnet High School in Hampton, N.H., she invited movies while her 23-year-old husband was out of town on business.

Slipping into a flimsy turquoise negligee, Smart led the trembling Flynn to an upstairs bedroom — and they made love for the first time.

In the weeks that followed, they had sex every chance they could get. All Smart kept telling Flynn: "You have to get rid of Greg. Otherwise we can't keep seeing each other."

She eventually gave him an ultimatum — kill Greg Smart by May 1 "or we're through."

Flynn and a friend ambushed the victim when he arrived home from work, with Flynn finishing him off with a single bullet to the head. They escaped in a getaway car driven by two more friends. Within days, cops received tips implicating the boys in the crime.

Next to be arrested was Smart her self — who eventually was convicted of capital murder on the strength of the testimony of Flynn and his pals. She was sentenced to life without parole for her role in masterminding the murder, but to this day, she brazenly proclaims her innocence.

Because he turned state's evidence against Smart, Flynn got off light. He's now serving out a 40-year sentence in

WIFE OFFED HUBBY WHEN MONEY

By APRIL SUMMERS

HE WAS found buried two-feet-deep in a hole in the middle of nowhere. Migrant workers had seen his leg protruding from the ground.

When Las Vegas lawyer Larry McNabney first disappeared, no one was concerned — he did that all the time. But this time, the 53-year-old was gone for good, murdered by his charming wife, a woman who had lied about her identity and covered up a 113-page rap sheet.

Elisa McNabney, 36, whose real name was Loren Renee Sims, had gone by 38 different names during her lifetime. She met Larry when she was hired to work for his personal injury firm in 1995. He quickly became smitten and the two were married, but friends remained apprehensive.

"You would ask about where she went to high school and pretty soon you'd be talking about sewing," said Reno lawyer Tom Mitchell. "Something wasn't right."

Elisa seemed happy living on the ranch and spending Larry's money, but eventually became fed up when his funds were depleted.

Their horse trainer, Debbie Kail, recalls a conversation in which the wife had asked her: "Do you think acepromazine could kill someone?"

"Heck yeah," she'd replied. "It can tranquilize a 1,500-pound horse. Imagine what it could do to a human."

Cops say the heartless wife slipped her husband a lethal dose of the tranquilizer before a September 2001 horse show in Los Angeles. Although his condition deteriorated during the day, Larry refused to die.

That afternoon, Elisa and best friend Sarah Dutra, 21, slid Larry into a rented wheelchair and pushed him back to their truck to take him home. He thrashed in the back seat and mumbled incoherently. In an eerie moment of clarity, he warned the women: "You'll never get away with this."

Once home, he died quietly in his sleep. Elisa wrapped him in a sheet and stuffed him into a spare refrigerator. After rigor mortis set in, though, his stiffened corpse forced open the door. Elisa then used duct tape to seal her chilling secret.

Just days later, she supposedly sold off his property for $500,000 and took off for Florida. After finding the buried body it took police until January 2002 to track her down because of her ever-changing identity.

Elisa McNabney confessed to the murder, but never stood trial — she hung herself in her jail cell with prison-issued bedsheets.

GORE WITH A ROYAL TOUCH

"Tom, I believe, had told Jane that he did not love her," says a close friend. "Obviously she was very distraught."

A heated argument ensued, during which Cressman called police for help. He was dead before police arrived at their Fulham, England, home.

During her trial, prosecutor Bruce Holden described Andrews as a "decent woman who was so transformed and burnt up inside that she killed." He says she maliciously beat her lover unconscious with a cricket bat, then went down to the kitchen to fetch a knife and finish the job.

"As the hope went out of the relationship, so the anger and jealousy rose up in her and led her to take a terrible revenge on the man she loved," Holden says.

painfully tried to remove it. The bludgeoning bat lay at the foot of the bed, and blood was sprayed all over the otherwise crisp sheets and white walls. A gash on the right side of his chest showed the knife had been plunged in to the full extent of the 6-inch blade, then sawed back out and thrust in again.

Andrews left him to die in his crimson-covered bedroom and penned two notes to her parents. They read: "I am so sorry. No more hurt inside me any more," and "Tom hurt me so much. He was so cruel to me."

Three days later, she was found at a rest stop near Plymouth, having overdosed on painkillers. She tried to convince police he had attacked her in the middle of the night and she had only acted in self-defense, but was ultimately found guilty and sentenced to life in

BLONDES REALLY ARE DUMBER

And there's a scientific reason for it

By CHARLEY SHOLTO

RESEARCHERS in Los Angeles, Calif., have recently produced evidence that repeated peroxide hair treatments — the chemical process that makes blondes out of brunettes — may lead to significant brain cell deterioration.

Dr. Jerry Knoff, lead researcher at California's Institute of Aesthetic Health, was prompted by a barrage of blonde jokes circulating around the office.

"I wondered if it's possible that there is a medical explanation for the reputation blondes have been given," says Dr. Knoff. Accordingly, the doctor and his team put out newspaper ads to solicit women for participation in the study.

Almost immediately, hundreds of blondes put stamps on their applications and faxed them to the institute. Many others tried to contact the office by telephone but experienced difficulties with the phone number. One study participant, 25-year-old dental assistant Bunny [redacted], explains: "I heard a commercial on the radio for the study. They said the[redacted] me eight-hur[redacted]-something, I looked on the phone for an eight-hundred button for at least an hour."

There was also some confusion when blondes willing to participate stood outside Dr. Knoff's office. "An anecdote illustrates the urgency[redacted] these women have to be helped," says Dr. Knoff. "Disappointed by what they took to be news of the theme park's closing, the busful of blondes made a U-turn and returned to the institute."

MYSTERY OF BUSH'S DEBATE BUMP SOLVED

Dick Cheney controls hunchbacked Prez with electrical [illegible]

By JAKE ANDERSON

WASHINGTON insiders have long joked that President Bush says whatever Dick Cheney tells him to, but it's even worse than that. According to insiders, in the first presidential debate with John Kerry, Bush had an electrical implant in his back, and the V.P. prompted Bush's every word and movement by remote control!

After the first debate, a photo posted on-line clearly showed Bush with a mysterious box-shaped bulge sticking out from under his jacket. Speculation spread that Bush wore a transmitter and received his answers from Cheney.

But Weekly World News has learned the truth is even more startling — the electronic device was implanted into Bush's back, and Cheney controlled the president's movements as a puppeteer does with a marionette.

"Bush can't speak without help," says a Washington insider. "That's why he insisted on testifying before the 9/11 commission with Dick Cheney at his side."

But in the last few weeks prior to the first debate, Bush had gotten worse. "Whenever he wasn't told exactly what to say, he screwed up."

MARTHA STEWART'S PRISON NIGHTMARE

By ANNE VAN HOUT

A SHOCKING picture of Martha Stewart with her face bruised and battered is being circulated as evidence that the domestic diva was badly mauled in a brutal prison beating.

The photo shows the controversial TV homemaker with one eye swollen shut, the other blackened, her lip split and a crudely stitched gash above her eyebrow.

An anonymous letter accompanying the black and white image alleges that the picture was taken inside the walls of Alderson Federal Prison Camp in Charleston, W.Va., where Martha, 61, is serving a five-month sentence for lying to investigators in connection with an insider trading stock scam.

The letter, a one-page typewritten document containing numerous spelling and punctuation errors, claims that billionaire Martha came out the loser in a bloody prison catfight with another inmate.

It goes on to say the picture was taken shortly after Martha's wounds

What women really want in a man... period

By [redacted]

A STUDY at Tremaine's University College of Newport shows that the type of male facial features that a woman finds attractive can differ depending upon where she is in her menstrual cycle.

"My team and I surveyed thousands of females ages 18 to 80," says Professor Jolene Chechi, who has conducted classes in feminism for 20 years. "We also clinically measured hormone levels and biological functions to obtain our groundbreaking results."

Chechi discovered these three important scientific facts.

1. If a woman is ovulating, she is attracted to men with rugged and masculine features. "This is the evolutionary instinct to mate with a man who will be a strong protector and provider," says the expert.

2. If a female is menstruating, she looks for a gentler, sensitive type of guy whose facial features display understanding. "In this part of a woman's cycle she is more vulnerable and needs the comfort of someone who looks like he will provide warmth and security," explains Chechi.

3. If a woman is suffering from what is commonly known as PMS, she is more prone to be attracted to a man with scissors jammed in his temple and a hot shovel up his ass while he is on fire.

"We're not sure what to make of this one," says Chechi.

REVEALED: Real reason aging rocker has so much energy

MICK JAGGER IS AN ANDROID

IF YOU'RE lucky enough to see The Rolling Stones in concert next year, be sure to get a close-up look at the band's lanky leading man.

According to a music industry insider, the energetic Mick Jagger is really a well-engineered android.

Rumors have been circulating for months that the aging Stones will be launching a new album and state-of-the-art tour in 2006. But the return of such a huge moneymaker have Mick Jagger's handlers a little nervous, so they've hired a genius scientist to create an android version of the large-lipped rocker.

"Mick's a joke," says the mystery insider. "What the onlookers will see will be completely lifelike, but it won't really be him.

"The guy is still cool, but he's been at it — he turned 61 in July.

"After spending the last 40 years jumping around onstage like a monkey, he's tired. All his friends are not playing golf and he's still working."

According to the anonymous source, Jagger's handlers first approached the hip-swiveling singer about the possibility of using a mechanical stand-in for 1981's Voodoo Lounge Tour.

"Mick wouldn't hear of it. So this time, everything's been done in secret. He's had the entire events taken and molds made of his entire body.

He thinks Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum is updating his wax figure, but everything was sent to a secret plant in Germany who crafted the machine."

Although the plan was originally to keep Mick in the dark about the entire tour, the organizers soon realized that would be impossible.

"The Stones are the greatest, most anticipated live act out there. They couldn't just have kept it a secret, but then they told Mick that he'll only be playing a few dates here and there. He should be able to handle that."

The Stones entourage had hoped their secret wouldn't be leaked, but the fiasco, insider thinks people have a right to know.

"The way Mick will be perceived at some of the shows. And the organizers suggest no one will be able to tell the difference."

That's not good enough for some fans, though.

"An android!" says a shocked Stones lookalike from South Carolina. "Those tickets cost a lot of money. I don't want to see a stone robot."

His friend sees it differently. "It can't be Mick, but the dude is old. I don't really care if the guy I see is the real one or not — as long as the music's good."

Now, says the music industry insider: "They just have to figure out what to do about Keith Richards. They don't want to spend the money on something that looks as bad as the original."

COUNTRY SINGER AXED 'CAUSE HIS SONGS ARE TOO CHEERFUL

ACCLAIMED country singer Mac "Lonesome Dad" Parry has been fired from his job as a country singer — because he started singing about finding a girlfriend, getting a great job and being happy.

"Country music is about LOSING stuff," says country job, whatever. The audience wants to feel like you're more pathetic than they are. Nobody wants to hear about a WINNER.

"Parry's made a career out of being a loser," says Pennyfeld. "His album Lower Than Dirt went platinum because all songs like 'My Girl-

Up' came out, his fans started sending hate mail and death threats."

Parry says he was just trying to be helpful.

"Everybody I know these days is down and out," he says. "I figured if I sang about good times, it would give them hope.

MICHAEL JACKSON CAN HEAR THROUGH HIS NOSE! — SAY EXPERTS

GLOVED ONE'S nose always points up when he's downplaying on a conversation.

BY MARK MILLER

ACCORDING to a respected ear, nose and throat surgeon who treated Michael Jackson recently, [redacted] former superstar has the ability to hear through [redacted] nose!

"We tested it by using high-tech sonar blocking devices to eliminate the possibility of his hearing anything from his ears, and then blindfolding him so that he couldn't read lips," explains Dr. Manette Kellem, at the California Medical [redacted] Facility just outside Sherman Oaks. "We then softly whispered several individual phrases directly into [redacted] Jackson's nose, and asked him to repeat them back to us. He did so without making even one error."

Michael Jackson's love affair with cosmetic plastic surgery is well-known. By the time he was in his late 30s, thanks to his many operations, the bridge of his nose was stretched parchment-thin and the tip of his nose was malleable.

Jackson's nose was reconstructed using a piece of his ear, according to German doctor Werner Mang. Mang claims he was contacted by Jackson's staff in the late 1980s because Jackson's surgically enhanced nose was reportedly "beginning to deteriorate."

EVERY TIME Michael Jackson is duped by fans, he tries to prove his point — because of his nose, say experts.

Dr. Mang says he used cartilage from the singer's ear to save his nose, an operation [redacted] doctors believe had only [redacted]. At his [redacted] clinic in Germany, Mang explained how he stole a sliver of cartilage from Jackson's ear and transplanted it on the tip of his nose.

"We decided that Michael Jackson, in reconstructive surgery of the nose, should get ear [redacted]," [redacted]. "You make a cut here on the skin of the ear [redacted] take out a big piece of the cartilage on the side. Then you make a cut on the nose and place the cartilage there. It's a wonderful material to reconstruct noses and repair them."

The operation took about two hours, and [redacted] Jackson's [redacted] was in bandages for about two weeks. Mang pronounced the reconstruction a success. "Of course, we never anticipated the [redacted] of his being able to hear through his nose," says Mang. "That was just a bonus." Asked about the advantages of [redacted] able to hear through his nose, Dr. Kellem says they include the ability to

- Use the phrase, "You know, I can hear through my nose," to impress potential romantic partners.
- Smell your fajitas and hear them sizzle at the same time, without involving your ears.
- Be written up in internationally [redacted] medical journals specializing in either ears or noses.
- Hear someone's heartbeat simply by touching your nose to their nipple.
- Be at an obvious advantage [redacted] once the new nasal-implant CD players hit the market.

PRETTY PLEASE . . . With a cherry on top? This provocative platter of fruit is an entry in an erotic fair held in Warsaw, Poland. The four-day "Eroticar" festival was supposed to feature the "World Sex Championships," but the mayor banned the event from taking place. Despite the order from city hall, though, naked women like this one created tasteful displays for hungry onlookers. With delectably enticing platters like these, who wouldn't want the show to go on?

Tiny town named Oz really has a wizard

— IF HE LIVES AT THE END OF A YELLOW BRICK ROAD

By NICK JEFFREYS

WE'RE off to see the Wizard — the wonderful Wizard of Oz!

Townsfolk in the remote Appalachian Mountain enclave of Oz sing the famous tune as they skip down a real-life yellow brick road that leads to their own wizard — who solves life's most vexing problems.

"The Wizard knows everything," says Lilia Boomhowser, an Oz resident. "He keeps our town safe from the feuds, arguments and all the pain and suffering that go on in other places."

Boomhowser, a 37-year-old mother of four, says she and her fellow Ozzites have followed the yellow brick road many times — all the way to a cabin deep in the wilderness [redacted] sage — according to local legend — resides.

"Once when I was 11 years old, the age folks in West Virginia usually take up smoking, I went to the Wizard with an important question," recalls Boomhowser with tears in her eyes. "My mama always smoked Kools, but Daddy swore Marlboro was the only cigarette in the world worth lighting up. Well, it got to be quite the catfight between them when it came time for us to pick a brand. I didn't want to upset neither of my parents, so we went to see the Wizard.

"He thought about it for an hour, and finally said I should smoke Virginia Slims Menthol Extra Light 100s box. Mama and Daddy held hands as we happily walked home, all three of us puffing away. It was magical."

No one knows who the mysterious little 64-man really is. Some locals say he's not even human.

[redacted] beer. Oz has had the [redacted]" says Gretchen Krabb, 68. "My grandpappy told me stories of his boyhood in Oz when people would ask the Wizard which side of the Civil War they should fight for, whether slavery was right or wrong and what type of laundry detergent gets their clothes cleaner while still keeping bright colors from fad[redacted]

IN THIS 1939 movie The Wizard of Oz, Tin Man, Cowardly Lion, Dorothy and the Scare Crow bustle on the door of the wizard's Emerald City.

"No[redacted] what advice he gives, we follow it. People have defied the Wizard, and always come to a horrible end."

[redacted] Wiz, an actor from Oz got [redacted] Captain Kirk fill a new[redacted] program [redacted]. The Wizard told him to take the job, but the performer turned it down, saying [redacted] show wouldn't last a month.

[redacted] a coal mine for the past 40 years," says Krabb.

She adds that her life has been joyous because she listened to [redacted]

"I went to him [redacted] I was 14 and asked him which of my cousins I should marry," says the mother of 12 and grandmother of 41 children. "Me and Jim [redacted] were happily wed for 60 years before he got drunk and got run over by a freight train.

"We in Oz are blessed to have the Wizard to guide our lives."

ELVIS MYSTERY: Air conditioner belts out 'Heartbreak Hotel'

PARANORMAL investigators are "all [redacted] up" about a mysterious air conditioner that rattles out the Elvis Presley song "Heartbreak Hotel."

Repeated attempts to service the unit, in room 201 of the Lucky Ace Motor Inn outside Las Vegas have failed to silence it.

"The most obvious explanation is that the Zane Milligan, who recorded the noises and confirms the melody matches The King's rendition note for note.

Yet scores of eyewitness sightings over the years indicate that The King is alive, the expert points out.

"Also, we've only been able to dig up one occasion when Elvis stayed at the motel, a one-night stand with a groupie in bed. We think the [redacted] held a special meaning for them."

Steve Bixby, the researcher believes, a despondent Elvis fan was listening to the mournful song on the radio in the hotel just before he or she committed suicide — and the psychic energy

Well, since my baby left me, I found a new place to dwell. It's down at the end of lonely street at Heartbreak Hotel.

SIZZLING SERENA

Help! Crazy Ouija board tried to cut my heart out!

Dear Serena: My Ouija board tried to kill me last night!

I was in my bed and all of a sudden that planchette thingie that moves around the board to give you your message flew up off the pagan altar I keep it on and hit me in the chest real hard. Then it started stabbing at my heart and digging into me with very evil intent, as if it were guided by the unseen hand of the Devil or a demon!

I screamed and grabbed an old crucifix I keep in my night stand from when I used to be a Baptist. I don't know whether it was because I yelled or scared it with the cross, but the plan hette flew back over to the altar and just lay there beside my Goddess of the Moon candle as if nothing had ever happened.

I know you might not believe me, but I've got deep scratches on my chest to prove I'm telling the truth. I'm scared, Serena. Why is my Ouija trying to kill me — and will it succeed? — Scared in Deep Gap, N.C.

Dear Scared: Your Ouija board and [illegible] have been contaminated by a malevolent spirit from the bowels of Hell. Analysis: There's a very real WILL kill you if you don't follow my instructions to the letter.

1. Soak your Ouija board and [illegible] in a bucket of holy water. Then, sprinkle the water with a pinch of salt and pepper — Tribulation sauce, you know, spiced to perfection.

Once the ritual is complete, the spirit will be extinguished. You can then proceed to your Ouija board at any toy shop or New Age emporium and use it with out fear of a "haunting" on you

Dear Frustrated:

Your bracelet WAS in the old book you've had since you were a child, but you've forgotten. Now, turn to page [illegible] of the paperback and [illegible] your memory to get it back.

If you can't remember, you can get it back. Ask Ann for details.

Will I move out of this dump?

Dear Serena: Will I ever get enough money to move out of this dump I'm living in?

I don't want anything fancy — just a neat, clean place to hang my hat will do. So what's the verdict, Sonya? Am I moving up — or not?

WHITE HOUSE APPOINTS ALIEN TO OBSERVE IRAQI ELECTIONS

'There'll [redacted] no hanging chads in Baghdad,' says [redacted]

By MICHAEL [redacted]

FREED from playing a central role in the U.S. presidential campaign, the Washington space alien P'Lod will soon be center stage in politics again. The White House has reportedly appointed the extraterrestrial to observe the upcoming elections in Iraq!

Administration officials say that the short-lived, morally superior fellow, held in high esteem by leaders worldwide, is the only figure trusted by all sides to serve as an "honest broker."

P'Lod accepted the challenging assignment, according to insiders — vowing there will be no "funky punky" in the vote, set for January 31.

"There will be no hanging chads in Iraq," P'Lod reportedly assured President Bush, referring to the botched Florida ballots that helped turn the November 2000 election into a fiasco.

The White House believes that ensuring that the election is universally seen as legitimate is the key to success in the troubled country.

It's an uphill battle. Amid widespread violence spawned by a well-funded insurgency, many experts doubt the election can take place as scheduled. But key Sunni group has called for a boycott of the vote.

"If the elections are seen as flawed, whatever government emerges will be dismissed as an American puppet," explains a senior administration official. "The country could descend into civil war."

Selecting an enemy who's above reproach won't work.

"The first name to come up was former President Jimmy Carter, who's overseen many Third World elections," says the official. "But any American would be suspect in the eyes of skeptical Iraqis.

"Someone from Egypt or Saudi Arabia might also appear to have an axe to grind and the same goes for a European. The only person certain to be objective is a being not from anywhere on Earth — P'Lod."

The new mission is far from the first foray into politics for the [redacted] behind the scenes in every presidential campaign since 1948.

"This campaign season P'Lod was especially active — political analysts agree his election changed enough votes to determine the outcome of the election," reveals Gary Goldstein, a leading UFO researcher.

Despite all the obstacles, U.N. Secretary Kofi Annan says January elections in Iraq are "technically possible." The U.N. and the interim government have assembled a list of nearly 14 million Iraqi voters and set up 550 voter registration sites around the country.

Now it's up to one unique being to make sure the vote goes off without a hitch.

"We have every confidence in P'Lod," declares the White House source. "Riding herd over those

INTERNET SAVES AGORAPHOBICS FROM LONELINESS

By BECKY TOBB

AGORAPHOBICS never set foot outside their homes, yet they still attend parties, meet loads of friends, fall in love, marry and even have great sex, thanks to the internet.

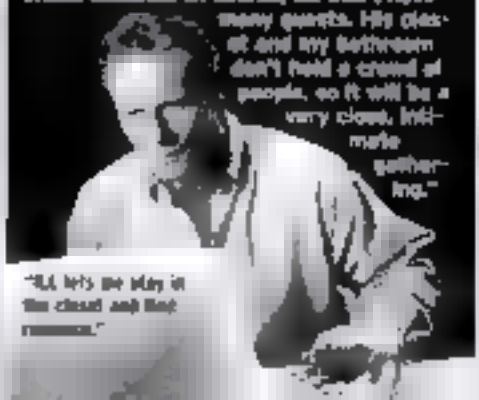
"The second a person afflicted with agoraphobia leaves their 'safe' zone, they panic," says Dr. James Hepburn of Georgia Tech Dukes University. "Their pulse starts racing, they can't breathe and they're terrified they'll either die on the spot or do something crazy in front of others."

Now, victims of the mental illness don't have to suffer in isolation any longer. A computer group called Indoor Living Lifestyles (ILL) has brought the nut-jobs together.

"I haven't left my bathroom for 20 years," says Willie St. John, 34, of Dallas, Texas. "And I just met my best mate through ILL. He is a wonderful, kind, caring, sensitive male who lives in his bedroom closet.

"Before ILL I felt so alone. Not anymore. We are planning a June wedding and even a virtual reality honeymoon where we'll swim on the white sand of the Bahamas. I'm so excited!

"Our ceremony will be conducted by an online minister. Of course, we won't have many guests. His closet and my bathroom don't hold a crowd of people, so it will be a very close, intimate gathering."



"ILL let's me stay in the closet and feel normal."

YOUR WEEKLY

BY SONYA

ARIES

Mar. 21 – Apr. 19

You've made a heroic effort to reach the goals that's been tugging at your heart these past few weeks. Don't worry, everything will work for G.R. again.

Be wary of silly love-endings who offer unwanted advice. Use your charms to put them off.

Set your sights on a well-deserved weekend of personal enjoyment, even if it means leaving some loose ends.

TAURUS

Apr. 20 – May 20

Holding the best of a rotten situation is what sets you head and shoulders above the rest. And the ability may be tested this week by a close friend or relative.

Be prepared for some unruly stuff that will leave you tickled pink. They appear to be headed your way — at long last!

Give your spirits a lift by rekindling relationships with neglected friend yours is will make your week.

GEMINI

May 21 – June 20

An opportunity for advancement or financial success arises this week. Remember that every change has its bad side. Weigh the good points against the bad before making a decision.

You're able to settle a crisis. Don't let the praise go to your head. You're always but you don't have to hear it constantly.

Sunspot could prove to be fra- ardent lies —echant

June 21 – July 22

You can't help but draw the attention of the opposite sex this week. Don't be flustered. Enjoy the flattering looks and go about your business.

Your sharp eyes spot a complex that could cost someone dearly. You deserve a pat on the back for your alertness.

The idea that a color can be lucky is nothing to sneer at. Red can bring good fortune this weekend

LEO

July 23 – Aug. 22

Something odd in just this week could provide the clue to a brighter financial future. Your creative harmony are especially sharp now, so make the best of the opportunity. Don't let this one pass you by.

Someone whom you've helped in the past stands ready to aid you now. Don't be afraid to ask for their assistance.

An old friend wants to hear from you

VIRGO

Aug. 23 – Sept. 22

This is a good week to keep your mouth shut and let others do the talking. A quick tongue will just get you in trouble. The more others jabber on, the wiser you'll appear to those who appreciate your silence.

A backstabbing pal may be leading you down the garden path. Watch your step.

Take care of any health problems now. Delay will only cause more harm.

HOROSCOPE

LIBRA

Sept. 23 - Oct. 22

You may be dealing with difficult people this week but you can handle it. Your ability to keep your temper should help you stay cool through trying times.

Friends may contact you with problems. They trust your advice, so give it — but don't overextend yourself.

You could use some downtime. Why not take a vacation or plan a special outing? Get plenty of rest.

PLUS! Find your fate for the coming month on the next seven pages!

SCORPIO

Oct. 23 - Nov. 21

Ignore rumors this week. They might lead you to the wrong conclusions. Trust your own instincts in making decisions.

Pay attention to those who depend on you for advice and support. The next few days will bring opportunities to help them out.

Annoying no-makers may leave you short-tempered. Relax at home or you can exercise patience at work.

PISCES

Feb. 19 - Mar. 20

A creative urge could bring some changes into your life this week if you follow your instincts instead of the crowd. Trust your intuition and you may be more pleasantly surprised.

Don't let your sense of loyalty get in the way of your better judgment. Strive to be more objective about those around you.

Try to be flexible if conflicting suggestions appear in your path.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22 - Dec. 21

You are too easygoing and hold back for your own good. That's an admirable trait if you don't mind getting walked on. Speak up this week.

You may get a change of scenery in the near future. Don't ignore an opportunity that could change your lifestyle.

Keep on your toes. A less fellow may try to catch you off guard. Don't let it happen or you'll be sorry.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

Someone you like and respect may disappoint you this week with an act that is totally out of character. Keep your cool until you know all the facts.

Be receptive to new ideas. Keep an open mind where opportunities are concerned. Your future may depend on it.

An old school chum may cross your path this week. Be aware that people change through the years.

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

This may be the week to reevaluate your commitment to the pursuit of an elusive goal. Consider devoting more time to achievable objectives.

Your generosity could lead to trouble when someone you trust tries to take advantage. Examine the situation objectively and rely on your common sense.

SERENA SABAK'S STAR CHART

WHAT THE ZODIAC HAS IN STORE FOR YOU THIS HOLIDAY SEASON!

THIS is the time of year when family and friends are most important. Remember the love you have for each other as you spend the holidays together. Cherish the old memories, and enjoy each other's company as you make new ones.

We have much to learn from the stars during this festive time. Carve the turkey, deck the halls and hit the malls — the holiday season is in full swing!

As always, there are many intriguing and potentially life-changing events in the future for you, particularly in the important areas of SEX, MONEY and HEALTH. And WWN's team of top astrologers, headed by our own Serena Sabak, have been closely watching the stars in order to provide you with their most exciting horoscope yet.

"Don't let the frosty air mirror itself in your attitude towards life," Serena says. "Instead, breathe in the coolness and refresh your inner soul. Mother Nature can be awe-inspiring if you take the time to notice her works.

"And once you come to peace with your surroundings, you'll begin to experience a magical harmony between you and your loved ones," she adds. "Take time to notice all that is good in the world. Even then won't seem quite as bad if you smother it with goodness.

"Follow closely what our guide tells you through the next month and late will shine good fortune on you and your family."

Careful contemplation and meaningful meditation have led Serena and her team to a deep understanding of what is to come. Looking far into the stars, they've come up with the best path to lead you down life's road this month.

Follow their advice faithfully with all certainty and confidence. Take care and good luck!

FUTURE'S BRIGHT, WE AIN'T LION!

SIZZLING SEX

THE MOON in Leo on November 14 attracts love to singles and you could hook up with someone who drives a big rig there. But someone cute you meet while shopping for Thanksgiving could turn out to be a real turkey — don't be in a big hurry to get involved.

Avoid repeating gossip at a party on November 20 — it isn't true.

Men, are you fruitful and limp in December? It's no wonder — the Viagra you bought on the Internet is a fake. Get the real stuff and your wife will stop running around on you! Even better, lunar action promises to lead you to a romantic getaway for two on December 11.

DESTINY is an overflowing slab in a [illegible] test mouth.

BAG$ O' BUCK$

LIONS are ready for a change, so when a perfect stranger offers to buy your house at a preposterously low price — just to get you out of his hair — don't be afraid to haggle. Remember, you're the one who's desperate, and you won't have to pay a penny in commission.

Monetary matters are favored, but don't overdo it. Lucky lottery numbers are scribbled on a paper sack, make your car's windshield, expose an underwear tag.

Lucky days on the calendar are [illegible] for a relaxing lunch at the Watering Hole, and the urge to splurge is strong. Be sure to check with your partner before you do anything foolish.

Remember, it's unwise to be the colorful clown of the day at work.

VIM AND VIGOR

ACHE YOU achy and stiff in November, Lion? Find an indoor swimming pool and dive in — water exercise will soon loosen you up.

When planning post-Thanksgiving holiday decorating, consider an artificial tree — astrological influences indicate you've developed an allergy to pine and fir.

Arguing can be harmful to your health, so stay mellow.

ZODIAC GUIDE TO SURVIVING TURKEY DAY FESTIVITIES

By SERENA SARAH

DOES Thanksgiving and the annual onslaught of hungry friends and loved ones wear you out, physically and emotionally? Well, relax, because this year you can follow Weekly World News' handy zodiac guide — and take the HASSLE out of Turkey Day.

ARIES: Are multiple cooks in your kitchen driving you batty? Don't throw them out, delegate all the chores and then enjoy watching them slave away while you relax.

TAURUS: Turkey day traveling sets the Bull child down — this year let the relatives bring the feast to you — tell them a psychic foretold danger ahead if you leave home on Thanksgiving.

GEMINI: Aunt Millie won't sit next to mom and sisters in the kitchen weeping because she thinks she's fat! Invite a bunch of friends to join the festivities and your family will be on their best behavior!

CANCER: Sis's heels are blasting the ceiling and Grandma's got the TV volume on high — it's driving you batty! Tempted to flip the circuit breaker and claim the power's out? Buy noise dampening earplugs and you'll survive headache free.

LEO: House-proud Leos could be driven to drink by hyperactive youngsters. Here's a hint: Plan activities to divert their attention from destroying your antiques and you'll survive without mishap!

VIRGO: Virgos are distraught when plans go awry, and this includes your relative's chronic lateness. But tell them the feast starts an hour earlier than you plan and for once they'll arrive on time.

LIBRA: Meddlesome relatives annoy privacy-loving Librans. Resist the urge to stuff a turkey leg in nosy Aunt Nellie's mouth. Fake deafness instead, responding to questions with "Eh? Eh?"

SCORPIO: Resist the temptation to shut Uncle Milton down the disposal, or shove Cousin Billy Bob down the trash chute. Scorpios: Turn your annoyance on the pots and pans, returning to the kitchen after dinner to scrub and polish your irritation away.

SAGITTARIUS: Archers hate being cooped up with a bunch of annoying relatives. Organize a hike, walk for the crowd — you'll enjoy the great outdoors and escapes them as they head home early.

CAPRICORN: Do you always get stuck at a sink full of sticky dishes while everyone else watches football? Avoid this by wearing rubber gloves — tell your relatives you have a skin condition that requires you to wear them. Guaranteed to work!

AQUARIUS: Fretting over who brings what stresses you out — and so does the fact that half your relatives can't cook. This year order a prepared feast from the deli.

PISCES: Peaceful Pisces dislike arguments. When your relatives start quibbling pretend to faint — they'll get so distracted the subject won't come up again.

That's just a sample of the astonishing trivia that reporters and editors at Weekly World News have unearthed while researching all the terrific stories you read in our paper every week. Here's more:

● The first bomb dropped by the Allies on Berlin during WW2 killed the only elephant at the Berlin Zoo.

● In 1916, 55 percent of the world's cars were Model T Fords. That record has never been beaten.

● The song with the longest title is 1945's "I'm a Cranky Old Yank in a Clanky Old Tank on the Streets of Yokohama with my Honolulu Mama Doin' Those Beat-o, Beat-o Flat-On-My-Seat-o, Hirohito Blues" by Hoagy Carmichael. He later said the song title really ended at "Yank" and the rest was a joke.

● One of the things the Apollo mission did was leave a cockroach on the moon. During their flight there, astronauts noticed a roach in the spaceship, but when they returned, there was no trace of it. The only conclusion: It
